IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION ORGANIZED GLENDALE AVE.

Proposes to Secure Salt Lake Tracks for Passenger Service or Else Removal—Effort to Improve One of Main Arteries of City—Other Facilities Suggested

A meeting of considerable importance to the civic interests of Glendale took place Friday night in the council chamber of the city hall which was attended by about 30 residents of Glendale avenue or persons interested in that thoroughfare.

It was called to order by H. C. Levey who, as a property owner is interested in the improvement of the street and in the removal of any hindrance to its development. He briefly indicated the purpose of the meeting and then introduced City Manager Watson who talked more at length along the same line, who mentioned among needed improvements the widening of the entrance at San Fernando road, also the securing of dedications for sidewalk easements notably north of Broadway where the property line runs to the curb.

The meeting decided to organize as the Glendale Avenue Improvement Association and proceeded to do so, electing Mr. Levey president, F. A. Marek, secretary, and Herman Nelson, treasurer.

It then elected committees, the first being a street improvement committee composed of O. W. Tarr, J. F. McClellan and F. A. Marek.

The second committee chosen was the Salt Lake right of way committee composed of Mrs. Mabel L. Tight, Spencer Robinson, George B. Woodberry, Herman Nelson and H. C. Levey.

These committees were instructed to meet at the city hall, May 20, at 8 o'clock for organization and discussion of how best to carry out the purposes of the organization. At that time it is expected that a third committee will be named by the president, a committee on organization and membership. It is the desire of this body to enlist the cooperation of all citizens interested in the improvement of this, one of the main thoroughfares of the city, whether the citizens own property on Glendale avenue or not. The association will have its second regular meeting on May 27. At that time the committees will report and receive instructions.

The aim of the movement is to secure the electrification of the Salt Lake railroad for passenger service or else the removal of the tracks which are now used only for the purpose of moving freight. Some of the members of the association feel that, in the event the passenger service cannot be secured it may be possible to persuade the Salt Lake company to move its tracks into a new district which would tap the industrial zone which is being established by Glendale and Burbank

TWELFTH ANNUAL ORATORICAL CONTEST OF THE GLENDALE UNION HIGH SCHOOL

Each Class Paraded From School to Tabernacle Dressed in Fantastic Garb, Symbolizing the Theme of Their Chosen Orator—Magnificent Decorations

Garlands blue and gold, garlands red and green, garlands orange and black, garlands red and white, lavish decorations of ferns and other greenery, beautiful booths composed entirely of flowers, a riot of fair young girls and frank-faced, carefree youths—this was the combination which transformed the tabernacle, late scene of grave thought and prayerful devotion, into a beautiful setting for the celebration last evening of Glendale Union high school's most important event of the year—the oratorical contest.

Each class paraded from the high school to the tabernacle, clad in fantastic garments symbolizing and interpreting the theme of their orator. Kathleen Campbell, president of the sophomore class, was also its chosen orator for the contest, and had selected for her subject: "Education, the Source of America's Progress and Power." This the sophomores symbolized in their parade in three groups, the members of one dressed as grammar school children, of another high school pupils, and the third as college students in cap and gown. Celebrating in an original song to the melody of "Schooldays," the oratorical prowess of their champion, Kathleen, they marched up one aisle to the tabernacle, paraded across the stage and down another aisle to the reserved section decorated with their class colors, blue and gold.

The theme of the speaker from the junior class, Dale Wood, was "The Golden Rule, the Solution of the Japanese Question." Boys of the class wore attired in white flannels, the girls in clever Japanese costumes with coolie hats. As they marched they sang the praises of their contestant to the tune of "Margie." Their parade was also across the stage and down to the section reserved for them, decorated in red and white, their class colors.

The long procession of freshmen, was led by Edwin Rike, representing Abraham Lincoln, a study of whose greatness formed the subject of the oration of their representative, Arden Gingers. The rugged, bearded figure of "Honest Abe" was followed by General Grant, General Lee, groups of ladies dressed in the fashion of '61 (hoop skirts and all), citizens of that period and negro slaves. Their marching song expressed their faith in their candidate for oratorical honors to the melody of "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp, the Boys are Marching," and their long line filed up the aisle, across the stage and down to the section adorned in the red and white of their class colors.

The procession of seniors entered in three groups, symbolizing three periods in the life of Woodrow Wilson, the orator of the class, Francis Read, having selected as the subject of his oration: "Woodrow Wilson, the Dreamer and the Doer." The first group, led by Arthur Campbell, representing Wilson's Princeton college days, was composed of girls in sport skirts and middie and boys in sport's attire, carrying Princeton pennants. The second, led by Robert Howlet as governor of New Jersey and the third group, Lloyd Culver represented Wilson as president, and other seniors impersonated members of his cabinet. This third group remained upon the rostrum, the president taking his place at the rudder in the "Ship of State" (the seniors' booth), his cabinet taking seats behind him. The other divisions paraded to the section assigned them, which was decorated in the class colors, red and green.

The booth of the sophomores was a staircase of nine steps, composed of red and white carnations. The word "Education," done in blue cornflowers, one letter on each step, beginning with the lowest, led to the platform of "Power" (also of blue cornflowers on a background of white carnations), behind which hung the Stars and Stripes. The booth of the juniors was a globe of white carnations, with the ocean in green, and America and Japan in red roses. The two countries were joined by the "Golden Rule," a band of yellow marigolds stretching across the Pacific from this coast to Japan. The log cabin in the freshmen's booth; the idea was developed in red and white carnations.

The "Ship of State," leading the world (a large floral globe), was the seniors' booth. Their idea, too, was developed in red and white carnations.

The four contestants for oratorical honors, Francis Read (senior), Dale Wood (junior), Kathleen Campbell (sophomore), and Arden Gingers (freshman), were seated on the platform. When all the classes had taken their seats, Jack Jenkins, chairman, announced that each class would give its song and two yells, in the order in which they had entered. The seniors sang the praises of their champion to the tune of "Brighten the Corner Where You Are"; the freshmen followed with their expression of faith in Arden Gingers, to the tune of "Yankee Doodle"; the sophomores sang to the melody of "Schooldays" their conviction that Kathleen would be the winner, while the juniors, to the tune of "Margie," expressed themselves as certain of the success of Dale.

As to the yells, the seniors sang with them, they deafened the ears of the great audience of proud fathers and mothers, admiring sisters and brothers, fond aunts and uncles, and doting grandparents and friends that packed the auditorium.

When quiet reigned once more, the chairman introduced Miss Kathleen Campbell, sophomore, and announced the subject of her oration. She made a charming picture as she stood to receive the tribute in song which the class paid her when it made its entry in a parade intended to symbolize her theme—"Education, America's Source of Progress and Power." She was altogether self-possessed and forgot herself in her pride in her class and appreciation of its loyalty to her. When she arose to speak the special class yell broke from the throats of her supporters—"Kathleen! she's a queen! Kathleen!" Her confidence did not desert her in any portion of her excellent oration and her easy charming delivery must have scored well with the judges. The rapid advance of this nation was compared with the sluggish development of the older nations in the world and the cause of this progress is found in our system of free education. She showed that from the first the colonists were solicitous about the education of the youth and that this ambition to fit them for the best in life had flowered

MRS. TRUEBLOOD SOUTHARD CHARGED WITH MURDER

Deputy Sheriff Ormsby, Who Has Worked Untiringly for Four Months in Building Up Case Against Woman,
Will Go to Honolulu to Bring Back Prisoner

(By International News Service)

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14.—Deputy Sheriff V. H. Ormsby, whose four months' untiring efforts resulted in building up the case against Mrs. Lydia Trueblood Southard, under arrest in Honolulu charged with the murder of Ed Meyers of Twin Falls, Idaho, and accused of having caused the death of three other husbands; a brother-in-law and a baby, planned today to sail for Hawaii next Wednesday, to bring back his prisoner.

He now expects his wife to arrive here Monday with extradition papers which Lieutenant Governor Moore of Idaho hurried back to Boise today to sign. Mrs. Ormsby is to accompany her husband to Honolulu to act as matron on the return trip.

Ormsby said today he had no official information regarding a reported offer of Paul Vincent Southard to send his wife back to the United States at his own expense to face trial without waiting for the arrival in Honolulu of Idaho officers. Ormsby doubted whether his superiors would consent to such an arrangement, and went ahead with his plans for departure on the Matsunos Wednesday.

The deputy sheriff revealed today that his unceasing search which began with his appointment to office January 1, for clues which finally led to the arrest of Mrs. Southard was the result of a political pledge.

"When Ed Meyers died on September 7, 1920, within three weeks from the day he was married to this woman, his friends started talking. They went to the district attorney, but for some reason nothing was done. Then the election came on and, strange to say, the candidates for sheriff were all asked: 'How do you feel about the death of Ed Meyers?' thus it became a political issue.

"When I set sail with my wife to bring back Mrs. Southard I will be fulfilling a pledge I made to the boys at Twin Falls when I was appointed deputy sheriff last January.

H. S. WEBB WANTS CREDIT ASSOCIATION

Says Credit Is the Foundation of All Big Business and Would Help City

H. S. Webb, the dry goods merchant, is greatly in favor of the establishment of a credit association in Glendale for the benefit of not only the business men of the town, but also of their patrons who may want credit as a matter of convenience. Said he:

"The success of the biggest retail store in the world, that of the Marshall Field Company has been founded on the policy of inviting the people worth while to trade with them on a credit basis because they realized that customers, particularly women, who have accounts, will buy more. They have also encouraged customers to send for goods on approval, pick out what they want and return the balance. Everything possible is done to persuade customers to do all their trading at that store. As a result they have built up a wonderful monument. No big business was ever built up on cash alone. The history of the world shows that most of the business of the world is done with paper. The banks have to extend credit.

"The place where the average small merchant falls down is in the collection of his bills. The great missionary work for the merchant is the education of the housewife who must be made to understand that if she is given credit she must pay her bills at the end of 30 days; that if she does this her credit will be killed.

"Where many a merchant fails is in not having the courage when his bills are due to urge payment. The customer learns to respect a business-like institution and unconsciously she becomes a better business woman. The relationship between the house and the customer is very amicable because she is taught to do business in a business-like way.

"Local merchants are blind to their own interests if they do not extend

CHICAGO "MONTE CARLO" FOUND

(By International News Service)

CHICAGO, May 14.—A Chicago "Monte Carlo" where huge sums were lost and won across green baize tables or at roulette has been uncovered by State Attorney Robert E. Crowe, it was learned today. The gambling establishment was located in the center of an exclusive North Side residential section.

According to statements made to representatives of the state attorney's office, one Chicago broker lost $700,000 in two hours of play and later won back $500,000. A Chicago oil operator is said to have lost $15,000, a Kan-kakee banker $2300 and another man $1400.

Chorus girls, it is alleged, were used as "lures" to entice victims to the gambling house. They were paid 10 per cent commission, according to reports.

Indictment of the lessee and several of his agents are to be sought, according to State's Attorney Crowe.

credit to good reputable people who have been educated in doing business in that way. All the best customers in a community have large accounts. The little fellow doing business on a cash basis gets only the small change of his customers. The large volume of business goes where the merchants are prepared to treat customers as they want to be treated and the little business that most needs customers is simply forcing them into the big stores because the merchant is not willing to give credit. Customers may wish to buy but say: 'I cannot get accommodation there.'

Mr. Webb says that the success of his business in Glendale has been due to his liberal policy in extending credit and that he has never lost a nickel because of it.

The people to whom credit is given is ordinarily the people who own homes and are established here. Extending credit to floaters who are here today and gone tomorrow, he says is poor business.

To Remedy Crowded Condition of Schools

Representative Committees Appointed at Mass Meeting to Ascertain Needs of District Recommends Study of School Conditions in This City

School Bond Election

The board of trustees of the Glendale city school district has called an election for May 24, to vote upon the question of issuing bonds of the school district in the sum of $199,000.

This action was taken by the board only after calling a mass meeting at which a committee was appointed to study the needs of the district and formulate a plan for supplying those needs. The committee was a very representative one, its members having been drawn from all parts of the district. Its findings therefore are impartial and represent the sentiment of the community at large.

Why the Money is Needed

To anyone making even a cursory study of school conditions in Glendale, it must be very evident that there is a crying need for additional facilities. The growth of Glendale in the past few years has been phenomenal; while the increase in school facilities in the elementary schools since 1916 consists of four school rooms. The growth of the school enrollment in the past year is nearly 700. Our rooms were crowded a year ago, are worse crowded at the present time and undoubtedly will be in still worse condition next year. The majority of our school rooms have more than 40 children in attendance and some rooms have over 50.

What the Money Will Be Used For

The program recommended by the committee and adopted by the mass meeting of April 7, 1921, is as follows:

A site will be purchased and an intermediate school erected at Park and Glendale avenues. This school is planned to contain eight class rooms, administrative offices, a cooking room, a sewing room, manual training room, and an auditorium, the latter not only to be used by the school, but also to furnish a community meeting place for the people of South Glendale who are now entirely without one.

Additions will be made to the grounds of the following schools: Columbus avenue, Acacia avenue, Colorado boulevard and Doran street.

Additions will be made to the following buildings: Columbus avenue, Acacia avenue, Colorado boulevard,

WILL HOLD BAZAAR EARLY IN JUNE

Ladies of St. Mark's Guild met in the parish hall on Thursday for their regular all-day meeting, when sewing and plans for the bazaar to be held on June 2 were made.

The most important feature of the business meeting was the announcement of the change of the location of the bazaar, while will take place on the church grounds instead of at La Ramada. Supper will be served in the church dining-room and booths for the display and sale of various articles will be erected on the grounds.

A social afternoon featured yesterday's meeting, the hostesses, Mmes. Hill, Chapman and Campbell serving five o'clock tea.

PLEASANT MEETING OF SEMI-MONTHLY CLUB

A very pleasant afternoon was enjoyed by members of the Semi-Monthly Club on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Charles Rudel at 315 West Vine street. The three-course luncheon which was served at 12:30, with charming table appointments, was followed by a game of whist, in which the high scores were made by Mrs. Mary O'Brien and the hostess, the two ladies receiving as prizes handsome hand-painted china plates. The 12 members of the club are Mesdames Charles Rudel, H. Dow, Mary O'Brien, J. Houle, Herman Nelson, Jessie Chapin, Peter Ferry, Fred Heusman, Carrie Smith, J. Lundregan and Misses Pauline and Emma Ruprecht.

MAY FESTIVAL AT INTERMEDIATE

Since the meeting of the Parent-Teacher Federation the middle of the week a decision has been reached to hold the May festival set for the 20th at the Intermediate school instead of at the home of the president, Mrs. John Robert White. After canvassing the situation it was considered to be a better place because of the auditorium which can be used for the evening's entertainment, the domestic science rooms, with grounds which will lend themselves admirably to outdoor features.

NO MEETING OF CREDIT ASSOCIATION

The many counter interests prevented the showing up of any large representation of business men at the chamber of commerce, Friday night, where it was expected a Glendale Credit Association would be organized. Instead of calling those who did come to order the meeting was postponed until a more favorable occasion which will be announced next week.

LEGION ENDORSES THE TOURNAMENT

Declines to Take Space in Proposed Building—Prefers to Get Its Own

At a rather lively meeting of the Glendale Post No. 127, American Legion, held yesterday evening, Past Commander Brinkerhoff of Post No. 8 was present and made an address. Dr. Yale, post commander of the Burbank post, was also present and took part in discussions.

Under the usual order of business, various committees reported, including the entertainment committee, which announced a basket social to be held at the headquarters next Saturday night at 8 o'clock for legion members, women's auxiliary and friends. There will be games and dancing and the baskets will be auctioned off.

A resolution prepared by a committee relative to the proposed military tournament to be held in July, precipitated much debate. It was several times amended and was finally adopted read as follows:

"Resolved, that Glendale Post No. 127, American Legion, endorses the proposed San Fernando Valley tournament as a civic body; and

"Be it further resolved, that Glendale post instruct its delegate to inform the central committee governing the tournament that this organization proposes in the near future, to acquire a house built by the American Legion and Glendale citizens and occupied by the American Legion alone."

QUITS FILMS TO ENTER BUSINESS

After several years in motion picture work, during which time he rose to the position of film editor with the Universal and Metro Film corporations, Leon Bachmann, a well known Glendale boy, has retired from the film game to enter business in Glendale.

With his cousin, Robert Blaisdell of Los Angeles, an expert auto mechanic, he has opened a garage and automobile repair shop at the corner of Colorado boulevard and Glendale avenue, under the firm name of Buchanan and Blaisdell. Mr. Mercer, the owner of the property at that location has built a new garage building of hollow tile for the young men, where they are prepared to give attention to any machine from a Ford Auto to a Rolls Royce. Mr. Bachmann is also an able mechanic, having worked at auto repairing before entering picture work. We expect to see the boys make a big success of their new undertaking.

ORPHEUS QUARTET MAKES DECIDED HIT

The expression was heard in many parts of the big tent last night that the 1920 program was so good that it was thought no improvement could be made, but that those so believing had to reverse their opinion after hearing the Orpheus Four. These men, the very choicest members of the Los Angeles Orpheus club, which has carried off the honors in many contests, gave a program yesterday afternoon and last night that simply cannot be surpassed.

The evening program occupied two hours and the audience would gladly have heard them for two hours more. The songs, from simple ballads to classical selections, all breathed the very soul and spirit of melody, the four voices blending in most exquisite harmony, while the humorous numbers were refined and irresistibly fun-provoking. The quartet arrangement of the sextet from "Lucia," was perhaps the most exquisite of all the many beautiful offerings. Mr. Wells, the baritone, and Mr. Adams, second tenor, gave the humorous numbers and the latter showed no mean skill as an accompanist on the piano. Mr. Glass, first tenor, and Mr. Campbell, bass, have voices such as are rarely heard—soft, pure, flexible and of infinite sweetness. Mr. Glass acted as spokesman for the quartet and he expressed his pleasure at their getting back to the vicinity of home after wandering all over the United States in their singing tour. He introduced to the audience the leader and director of the Orpheus club, "Jake" Depule whom he espied in the audience, and the latter gave a little talk.

"ANY NASH CAN DO IT" SAYS E. B. SUTTON

E. B. Sutton of the Nash Auto Agency of Glendale, has another reason to be especially proud of the Nash. The following telegram was received by him from the Pacific Nash Motor Company:

"Nash six stock touring car, registered in at Tallac, Lake Tahoe, at 2:06 p. m., today, first automobile to reach Lake Tahoe this season via Placerville road under its own power, encountering successfully unbelievable road conditions and snow 2 to 12 feet deep. Another demonstration of Nash stability."

Mr. Sutton says: "Any Nash can do it."

LARGE NUMBER OF TRAFFIC VIOLATORS

More than 40 cases of traffic law violation were disposed of by Judge Lowe yesterday, the fines and forfeitures amounting to almost $150. Where there were extenuating circumstances the judge either modified the fine or dismissed the offender with a warning.

"GLEN AND DALE"

The program committee of the state convention is rapidly making definite plans and already three speakers of national reputation have been secured.

Rev. Ira Landrith, L.L.D., Texas-Tennesseean, author in 1911 of the winning slogan: "A saloonless nation in 1921," who has for 20 years been among the nation's foremost fighters for civic righteousness, is one of the speakers. As a member of the flying squadron of America, he spoke in 1914-1915 in every state capital and 300 other cities. He has for 11 years been a college president. He is a writer, journalist and statesman.

Dr. A. L. Shelton, M.D., is another speaker. He is in this country recuperating from the thrilling experience of being captured by brigands in Tibet in whose hands he was for 71 days. He penetrated into the land farther than anyone had hitherto and he tells vividly of his experiences.

Dr. Courland Meyers, pastor of the Tremont Temple Baptist church of Boston, will be at the convention for the opening night. He is a man with a passion for souls and possesses a wonderfully fascinating personality, as well as being a great orator.

The decision solos for the convention are to be given by Mrs. Fannie Marple Retts, a consecrated soloist of note.

Otis Ironmonger, who has just been with us in the John Brown meetings, is to have charge of the singing and will do some solo work.

A sunrise service on the hills Sunday morning will be a feature this year, a "Victory Circle" is to be another attraction, and many others of the old-time attractions promise a splendid program this year, so register now and be ready for the opening night, June 25.

ATTENTION DOG OWNERS

I am commanded by the city trustees to rigidly enforce the ordinance compelling the muzzling of all dogs running at large and dog owners are warned. Any dog found on the streets without a muzzle will be disposed of according to the provisions of the ordinance.

J. P. LAMPERT,
City Marshal.

Branch of Southern Cal. Loan Association

C. M. Weyand and L. B. Beach, Active in Management, Will Become Resident Property Owners—To Be Truly
Local Affair—To Encourage Thrift

Among the new comers who are being brought to our city by big business are two men who are to be connected with the branch which the Southern California Metropolitan Loan Association in the Cole & Damerell building on West Broadway. One is C. M. Weyand, who will have charge of the office and who plans to buy and build a home here. The other is L. B. Beach, who has already purchased an apartment on North Brand. They have most cheerfully acquiesced in the plans of the association to make this branch a truly local affair, and they share the enthusiasm of S. L. Roland, general manager of the association in Los Angeles, who lives in Verdugo Woodlands and has become a great booster for our city.

As outlined by Mr. Roland, the object and purpose of this association is to encourage thrift, saving and home building by providing a fund whereby each family can become the possessor of a home. This purpose the association carries out by issuing several classes of investments. One which is termed "fully paid investment certificate" is issued in sums of $100 or any multiple thereof and pays 6 per cent per annum, payable semi-annually, with the privilege of withdrawing any time after one year with 6 per cent to date of withdrawal.

Another form is termed the "monthly installment investment certificate." In that class of investment any amount can be invested at any time, the association paying 5 per cent with the privilege of withdrawal at any time in part or in full, with certain restrictions as to notice to provide against runs. Whenever $100 has been accumulated in that kind of investment it can be converted into a fully paid investment certificate drawing 6 per cent.

Another line of investment is what is termed "membership shares, the par value of each share representing $200 at maturing with a payment of $1 per month on each share. Whenever the amount paid in plus the earnings amount to $200 per share, the certificate holder receives $200 in cash or if he prefers can invest in 6 per cent investment certificates. Mr. Roland

4-YEAR-OLD MAKES OCEAN TRIP ALONE

Smiling coyly and waving a cheery good-by to her dad on the pier, Miss Phyllis Tocque, four years old, of Louisville, Kentucky, recently sailed from New York for England to visit grandparents. Phyllis's mother died last year, and her father could not leave his business to accompany her. However, he saw her put safely on board the steamer. It was an old story to the little traveler from Louisville, however, for this is her third trip across.

INTERESTING FACTS ABOUT POSTOFFICE

One passing along the street in the morning before eight o'clock and looking in at the north window of the postoffice can gain some idea of what a really great institution we have here in Glendale as a tail to the Los Angeles kite. There are 19 city carriers, 3 rural carriers and 7 other employees, including Chief Clerk Hallett and his two assistants. Two more clerks are urgently needed. They have been applied for and promised but how soon they'll be sent is quite another matter. Glendale does as much business and has as many employees as many a post office of the second class. Many cities of 2000 population and up have independent postoffices, while Glendale, with nearly 20,000, is merely a station.

The matter of procuring a site is a very simple matter for a city with as many public spirited citizens as Glendale can boast. When Long Beach was not as large as Glendale now is, a group of business men erected a three story building 40 by 110, the two upper floors devoted to rooms and apartments and the entire ground floor being rented to the government for a postoffice at $1.00 a year. These men claimed that the location of the postoffice thus in the vicinity of other property they owned so enhanced its value that they were well repaid for the investment. If Glendale can but secure an independent postoffice, a federal building will not be needed for years if some such plan can be persuaded as that adopted in Long Beach. So low a rental would not be necessary but undoubtedly a moderate rate could be arranged for in some such manner as noted above. But the vital thing is that Glendale must have an independent postoffice.

"HARD LUCK" AT PALACE GRAND

Those many troubles attendant upon a firmly rooted but rather vaguely directed desire to become a self-extinguisher, form the merry basis for the continuous hilarity of "Hard Luck," the sixth of the Buster Keaton comedies, released by Metro, which is being shown at the Palace Grand Theatre.

"The Kentuckians," a Paramount picture in which Monte Blue is the featured player, is a big Charles Maigne production which will score heavily on its presentation at the Palace Grand today. It is a wholly adequate picturization of the celebrated novel by John Fox, Jr., and it presents a series of highly dramatic situations. Excellent support is given by Diana Allen, who heads an unusually capable supporting company.

For Sunday and Monday the Palace Grand offers the wonderful screen version of James Fenimore Cooper's world famed classic story of the American Indian, "The Last of the Mohicans," featuring Maurice Tourneur.

Critics have placed Maurice Tourneur's new picture, "The Last of the Mohicans," in a new category of film productions. It is called a permanent photoplay classic, which means that it will live when the ordinary film has passed on. This is for several reasons, the one being that Tourneur proved he could make an absorbing entertainment out of Cooper's famous story, and at the same time preserve the historical and educational values.

BERLIN, May 14.—Albert Korfanty, self-appointed "dictator" of Upper Silesia has sent an ultimatum to the Polish government at Warsaw, according to a dispatch from Oppeln today, demanding recognition of Upper Silesia as a Polish province. If refused, Korfanty threatened to separate Posen from Poland and create a new independent state, consisting of Poland and Upper Silesia.

Twelfth Annual Oratorical Contest of Glendale High

in the establishment of Yale, Harvard and the brotherhood of great state universities that have been born since this government was founded on a platform of equal opportunity for all. "The stability of a nation rests on the knowledge and power of its people," she declared. She pointed to the effective participation of the United States in the great war, almost without preparation, and declared it was due to our free educational institutions which had made our young men competent and resourceful. She mentioned the fame that is coming to the United States from the work of her engineers in Africa, South America and in reconstruction in Europe. In closing, she said:

"While we, the people of the United States, should be proud and hold up our heads, we must be modest, too, and not forget that it is not we who have made America the great world power she is today. We must lift our hearts in thankfulness to our Creator for making America what she is and blessing us with citizenship in America." Enthusiastic applause was given the young lady's speech.

No less enthusiasm was exhibited for Dale Wood, though it could not find full expression because of the restrictions made necessary by the audience across the way. His theme, "The Golden Rule, the Solution of the Japanese Question," developed into a defense for Japan and its little brown citizens, and a plea for charity and fair play.

of Japan, the closing of its ports to the world because its rulers feared the effect of outside influence, the reopening of these ports to Admiral Perry of the American navy, and the wonderful advance the Flowery Kingdom has made since they were opened. Said he: "In five decades Japan has accomplished more as a nation than many nations have accomplished in 500 years." As one evidence that she is abreast of the times, he cited the establishment of the University of Tokio, one of the largest in the world. He called attention to the thrift of the Japanese, their highly developed sense of art, their business ability and their cramped quarters, which has forced them to emigrate to other countries. He declared that the sentiment against them had been fostered by propagandists and was not justified by the facts, nevertheless it had brought about a tense situation between the United States and Japan.

In closing he said: "Will Japan ever become our enemy and forget what she owes the United States. The answer is: 'Whatsoever a man soweth so shall he reap.' Let us therefore apply the golden rule before we reap a harvest of hatred."

Arden Gingery, who represented the enthusiastic freshmen, was the theme of a spirited class song, and also of a variety of original yells. Standing on a platform which had for a backing the floral emblem of his speech, he log cabin home of Abraham Lincoln, red and white carnations, he paid the tribute of youth, patriotism and reverence to the "great commoner," the savior of his country in the hour of need. He went back into history to show that every great crisis had demanded its leader. Then he reviewed the life of Lincoln, his humble birth, his limited opportunities, his great soul. He closed with the words: "Never will he be forgotten. Until the gates finally close on all of his fellowmen he will be remembered as the embodiment of all that is true and courageous." The applause that followed Arden's speech was prolonged and hearty.

It was natural that Francis Read, who has brought honor to the school in debate and oratory in the past and who, as a senior, will soon sever his connection with the school, should be the object of enthusiastic applause and interest. Through the ordeal of songs, yells and cheers, he acquitted himself modestly, and when he arose to speak on "Woodrow Wilson, the Dreamer and Doer," it was to launch into an address which showed more imagination, more flowers of thought, than any that had preceded it, and to this fact is doubtless due the unanimous decision of the judges which placed the laurels of the evening upon his brow.

"Sail on! sail on, thou ship of state" was his opening phrase and keynote. Beginning at the historical foundation of the ship of state, he declared that with the outbreak of the world war had arisen another crisis which called to America to sail into new waters and set a new standard to the nations of the world. Woodrow Wilson had been the courageous leader in that critical moment and the supreme power of that leadership had raised him to giddy heights beyond the capacity of his fellow-citizens to follow, but not beyond heights which will yet be justified. Said he:

"From these giddy heights he has fallen because the world has not reached the plane of his ideals. History will award him a place of honor. The treaty of Versailles may be into oblivion, the league of nations may be forgotten, but Woodrow Wilson's name and ideals will live on forever." Applause and cheers followed the close of his speech.

Pandemonium reigned while the judges were in an anteroom trying to decide which of the four beautiful booths was the most beautiful and which of the four fine orators was the best. Yells and more yells served to let off steam engendered by the suspense of waiting. Finally Rev. C. M. Calderwood, chairman of the judging committee of the booths, announced, after a humorous, tantalizing speech which prolonged the agony, that the judges awarded the palm to the sophomores ladder of education. This, of course, was the occasion for more class yells, the winners standing on the seats and dancing in glee.

Jack Jenkins, the chairman, finally announced that the oratorical prize, $20 in gold, had been awarded to Francis Read, the orator of the senior class. Upon hearing this, the seniors broke all bounds, rushed to the stage and carried Francis out of the tabernacle on their shoulders.

SILVER CUPS AT THE ORATORICAL

Vying in some degree with the booths in challenging the interest of the big audience which assembled at the Tabernacle to hear and witness the Glendale high's great oratorical contest, were the silver cups conspicuously displayed, which are the emblems of victory. Two are the interclass cups awarded to the custody of the winning classes from year to year. The inscription on one is a record of classes which have won the booth awards since the oratorical was established in Glendale high by Prof. Harry Howe. The other cup bears the name of the winner of the oratorical award. The third cup is in the custody of the school but will not belong to it until it has been three times won in a contest in which all the winners of Southern California will engage before the schools close for the year. That cup was offered by the University of California and has been twice won, first by Clarence Ralston two years ago, and last year by Jack Jenkins, champion of the seniors last year. If Francis Read, who will be the school's champion this year, succeeds in winning, the cup will become the permanent possession of the school.

W. D. Root, former head of the debating department of Glendale high, told of the establishment of the Oratorical by Mr. Howe, now principal of Coachella high, and gave the information that the winner in his school will be one of the competitors for the silver cup against Francis Read. Jack Jenkins, who as the winner last year automatically became the presiding officer at this year's contest, filled his role excellently. He showed his sympathy with all the enthusiasm and racket saying: "I have been there and know how they feel." He explained the absence of more feminine contestants by the rule that an oration must be limited to 1500 words, which of course brought a laugh.

"HALF A CHANCE" AT GLENDALE THEATER

"Half A Chance," which completes a three-day run at the Glendale theater today, is a stupendous drama picturized from Frederick Ibsen's novel and starring Hamilton and Lillian Rich.

A real task presented itself in the staging of "Half A Chance," not alone because of the diversity of the scenes, but because of the unusual character of many of them. One of the most realistic and distinctive sets in the picture is the stokehole of a ship. Such a mere trifle as a shipwreck was necessary.

But no hardships daunted the entire production staff. The persevering picture perfection was attained, and the result is worth the effort.

Edith Roberts, the dainty Universal star who is to be seen Sunday at the Glendale theater in "The Unknown Wife," is the romantic type of young girl, and the stories in which she appears on the screen naturally have for a heroine a maiden of much charm and appeal. But according to every one of Miss Roberts' friends, her directors, her business associates and every man, woman and child at the studio, from leading man to property boy, no heroine that Miss Roberts has portrayed before the camera possesses quite the charm and appeal that the real Edith Roberts does.

Patrons of the Glendale theater will have a chance to judge for themselves on Sunday evening the potency of Miss Roberts' charm for the beautiful Universal star will appear there in person at the first evening show.

You can't make 'em believe it, but dishwasher will make the hands just as soft as these patent creams.

THE SCHOOL BOND ELECTION

Mr. Voter: Remember the School Bond Election, May 24, 1921, 8 a. m. to 6 p. m.; polling places, Central avenue school for those living north of Doran street; Cerritos avenue school for those living south of Windsor road; Intermediate school for those living between these two streets. Amount of proposed issue, $199,000.

This amount is absolutely necessary to put our schools in good working condition and take care of the tremendous growth that Glendale has had in the last two years.

Remember that the cost to you is small. If these bonds are voted it will increase your tax rate 16 cents or less on the $100; that is to say, if you are the owner of a home worth $5000 assessed at 40 per cent of its value, the cost to you of these bonds for the first year would be $3.20. The benefits far outweigh the cost. Do not fail to go to the polls and vote.

CARE OF THE HANDS

What is as useful as a hand should express the best care and keeping that it may be a credit in appearance as well as in service. A beautifully shaped hand loses much of its charm if not well kept, and a hand not so well favored may become attractive if kept in perfect condition. No, that does not need to discourage you, for it does not require a great deal of time to put your hands in good condition, and once started the work can be kept up with a few minutes daily and a general going over about once a week.

Work is just what hands need to keep them supple and young; otherwise they would become stiff and unwieldy, so do not bemoan your fate if you are so situated that your work in life comes within the home. Housework furnishes a splendid medium for exercising the muscles of the hands. Be sure to rub a little lemon juice or vinegar into the skin after taking them out of the hot, soapy water after washing dishes. Then apply a softening cream or lotion, rubbing it thoroughly into the hands. A fork run through a rolled dishcloth will help you to wash dishes without putting your hands in the water.

A well-kept hand includes care of the nails, which is not at all a strenuous task, if not neglected for too long a time. Even then, faithful work will overcome neglect. Get the habit of pushing the cuticle back with the towel every time you dry the hands, as that will keep the cuticle from clinging to the nail and also prevent hangnails, than which there is nothing more disagreeable, both for looks and feelings. A little half moon or crescent at the base of the nail is a mark of beauty, but there is no cause for worry if it will not show, as a short nail precludes its appearance. Many times faithful work brings it into evidence a little bit.

A few implements are necessary in caring for your nails, a pair of scissors, with curved, narrow blades; a long, flexible file, and at least one buffer, or polisher, with kid or chamomile covering; a few emery boards, or flats, orange-wood sticks, a nail-brush and polishing paste or powder.

File the nails into the desired shape, either round or pointed, after which soak the finger tips in a bowl of warm, soapy water for five or 10 minutes to soften the cuticle so that it can be worked easily. If there are ragged edges on the cuticle clip them off with the scissors, but avoid trimming the cuticle as much as possible as cutting causes it to become thickened.

Wrap a bit of cotton around one end of an orange-wood stick, dip into the soapy water and rub all spots and dirt off the nail and under the nail. If the nail is much soiled underneath, dip your orange-wood stick in peroxide and then go under the nail, or use one of the bleaches for that purpose. All roughness on top of the nail may be worked away with an orange-wood stick dipped in the water and then into powdered pumice stone. After the nails are cleansed and all roughness worked away, scrub the finger tips in warm water, using a small nail-brush for that purpose. Rinse in clear water and dry. Examine the nail for discolorations and, if any, use your orange-wood stick again to remove them.

Now for the polishing: Dip your buffer into the nail polish, or put polish on each nail and rub until a good gloss shows. The palm of the hand may be used if you prefer it to a buffer.

After putting your nails into good condition, which should be done once a week, a little watchfulness each day will keep them looking well, and a few strokes of the buffer will help each morning. A protection while doing housework is a pair of heavy cotton gloves, canvas ones for the heavier work, and rubber gloves for strong, soapy water. With care, a pair of rubber gloves will last some time.

Never go out into the cold air after washing the hands without thoroughly drying them, as the skin is apt to become rough and red if you do. A cold cream, or hand lotion, will keep them soft.

Cost as much as a dozen, you see.

Poor! Very poor! We admit admit it, but then everybody has to wear shoes, and everybody will be glad to know that they are coming down, and that you will be able to buy a pair of shoes for what the sole of one would cost a few months ago.

PERSONAL MENTION

Mrs. Thomas Howe of 328 West Colorado, was the guest of friends in Los Angeles yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Fay are leaving this evening for San Francisco to attend the Knights of Pythias convention at Santa Rosa.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Puffer of 452 West Vine street, were hosts Thursday evening to a number of friends in honor of Mr. Puffer's birthday.

Mrs. Ella Richardson of North Brand boulevard is traversing the streets of Glendale in a new Nash Sedan. Her friends say it is a lovely riding car.

Dr. Jessie A. Russell, 643 North Maryland avenue, who has been in Washington, D. C., and visiting other eastern cities, will arrive home this evening or tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. William Brouse of Los Angeles are the rejoicing parents of twin boys born Thursday night at the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital. Mr. Brouse is connected with the Southern California Gas Company.

Max Green and family are moving today from 140 South Jackson street to 127 North Orange street. Max sold the home on Jackson street recently to a Mr. McQueen of Salt Lake City, who with his wife will move in early next week.

The Madrigal Club on Wednesday night, May 18, at the Congregational church, will give a musicale. The club will be assisted by Mrs. Hopkins, harpist, and Mrs. Frank Arnold, mezzo soprano. A silver offering will be taken for the benefit of the music fund of the church.

Albert E. Hewitt and mother are enjoying the week-end down at Redlands. They left Friday to attend the Epworth League convention of the Pasadena district. Leland Baker and Esther Beasant from the Central Avenue Epworth League are also attending the convention.

Misses Bernice and Grace Coffey of 568 North Maryland avenue, took advantage of the half holiday at the high school yesterday and visited Manual Arts school in Los Angeles, at which school they were students before coming to Glendale. Miss Bernice remained over night with her aunt, Mrs. L. W. Havens of Los Angeles.

Mrs. O. M. Carpenter of 114 East Park avenue, was the guest last Sunday of friends near Corona, who celebrated a birthday anniversary with a big turkey dinner. Mrs. Carpenter was also a guest on Friday of Chapter A. P., of the P. E. O., Los Angeles, which celebrated the seventh anniversary of its organization.

HOST TO SOLDIERSDisabled Ex-Service Men Are Entertained by Hollywood Chorus

Professor Hugo Kirchoffer of Hollywood and the members of the big Hollywood Chorus of which he is the leader, came to Glendale Friday afternoon to entertain the disabled ex-service men at Thornycroft. They were welcomed with enthusiasm and put on a program that was much enjoyed and that included song and dance numbers by Miss Irene Conklin, monologues by Miss Beatrice Peskett and chorus numbers, "The Call," "Lords and Ladies Gay," "Marguerite," and for an encore, "John Brown's Baby." Besides this entertainment the soldiers were the recipients of candy, fruit, cake, flowers, music, magazines and other gifts which were appreciated.

To Remedy Crowded
Condition of Schools

Doran street and Pacific avenue. Following the recommendation of the committee these additions will be in the form of separate units of two, three or four rooms of fire-proof or semi fire-proof construction, all to be built on practically the same plan except where the exterior will have to be changed to conform with the present building.

The plan is to so construct these units that they will be suitable as a part of a permanent plan, that is to say they will be the first units of complete buildings or groups of buildings, to be constructed later. This statement does not of course apply in full to permanent buildings, such as the Pacific avenue school where the new units will be made to conform to the architecture now on the board, and we believe also of the community, that such buildings as the Cerritos avenue, Columbus avenue, and others that are similar will be replaced by buildings of a better and more permanent type of construction, and what is planned to do now is the first step in that direction.

Two more projects to be carried out under this bond issue are the erection of a two-room school building in the Verdugo canyon and the conversion of the two semi-basement rooms at the Central avenue school into school rooms.

What Bond Issue Will Cost Tax Payer

Using as a basis the assessment of March, 1920, the increase in the tax rate caused by the voting of these bonds would be 16 cents on the $100 of assessed valuation. To the owner of a $5000 home assessed at 40 per cent of its value this would mean an increase in his taxes of $3.20. However, the city of Glendale between March, 1920, and March, 1921, issued over $3,000,000 of building permits. The buildings erected under these permits were included in the assessment of March, 1921, thus increasing very materially the total assessed valuation of the school district. This means that the figures given above on the cost to the individual tax payer are unquestionably higher than his tax bill will actually show.

Benefits Secured by Voting Bonds

By voting these bonds and embarking upon the building program outlined above the city of Glendale will keep itself in the place where it now belongs in the front rank of Southern California municipalities. A community without good and ample school facilities for its children is a community shunned by the home seeker. Real estate dealers are fully aware of how vitally the question of school facilities enters into the decision of a newcomer to buy a home in our city. A progressive community cannot afford to do without good schools. The real question involved in this bond issue is, "Shall Glendale continue to progress or shall she turn backward?"

In conclusion we urge every voter to go to the polls on May 24 and vote for this bond issue.

The polling places are as follows: Central avenue school for those living north of Doran street, Cerritos avenue school for those living south of Windsor road, Intermediate school for those living between these two streets. The polls will be open from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m.

(Signed)
H. V. HENRY, Chairman,
WILLIAM C. WATTLES,
OLIVER O. CLARK,
Publicity Committee.

Branch of Southern California Loan Association

states that dividends on this class of investment have averaged better than 7 per cent for the past 34 years. Money thus invested can also be withdrawn at any time. If withdrawn before the expiration of eight years the investor receives the full amount paid in plus 5 per cent. After eight years he receives the full earnings.

This money is to be kept in Glendale for the building of homes. When a loan is made the painter, the plasterer, the brick mason, the plumber and the various other mechanics get a certain proportion of that money and they spend it with a local merchant. Eventually therefore it finds its way into the local banks. For this reason, Mr. Roland says, the association cannot be regarded as in competition with the banks, but as an organization for the benefit of all the business interests of the city and of the property owner.

The directorate of the association includes: M. S. Hellman, vice president of the Security Trust & Savings bank; C. Seligman of the M. A. Newmark Company; J. B. Newton, a director of the Farmers & Merchants' National bank and also a director of the Los Angeles branch of the Federal Reserve bank; J. W. Montgomery of the firm of Childs, Hicks & Montgomery; J. A. Foxman, president of the Los Angeles Soap Company, George W. Grimes of the Grimes-Stassforth Stationery Company, Charles B. Donatin, James B. Gist, Julius H. Martin and Horace B. Wilson.

PICTURES DRAWN
BY TELEPATHYYoung English Girl Sketches
Accurately Things She Has Never Seen

By MARGERY REX

For International News Service
NEW YORK, May 14.—If suddenly, out of nowhere, came to your mind a picture which you proceeded to draw or paint, that would be no very extraordinary affair, would it?

But, if weeks later, in a new land perhaps, or in a book of photographs you saw the identical thing you had painted—what would you say? Especially if your sketch showed an ancient temple or far-off villa whose like you had never seen before?

Transmigration of the soul, or the theory of reincarnation, might to some explain such an occurrence. But Miss Sydney Dyke rejects these theories, or rather says she simply doesn't try to account for her "memory" pictures.

On the walls of "The Oasis" at 19 East Forty-seventh street, Miss Dyke's paintings hang at present. To the uninitiated they look like very interesting watercolor of landscape and design. But they are of two particular kinds, those called "symbolic portraits" and the others, "memory pictures."

Miss Dyke Tells Experiences

"Sometimes I have thought," says Miss Dyke, "that I have looked upon certain scenes in another age, another place. But I do not like to talk of transmigration."

"Yet, I do believe in something like a continuity of life. For instance, there is the 'Villa d'Este,' the painting over there with the cypress trees, a little pond, and a villa in the distance. When I made that I had a strong feeling that I must put pinnacles on the building, although I thought they would be hardly the thing. Later I met someone who saw the picture and discussed it with me."

"I wanted to call it the 'Villa d'Este.' We got a book of villas and found that one really called by that very name—a fifteenth century building—had pinnacles such as I had drawn."

"Reincarnation, as an explanation, I don't like. The word is used by so many fakers that I must reject it."

Miss Dyke is a tall, striking-looking young woman of handsome and wholesome aspect. Her findings are not the result of mooning over weird psychic subjects, but have come naturally and simply to her attention. She has made pictures, the ideas of which interested her, and later found that they had an odd significance. From that beginning she perfected, by self-teaching, her technique in water color so as better to present her subjects.

Remarkable Castle Picture

From the pages of a novel treating of Irish life, Miss Dyke showed me another of her "memory pictures"—the interior of a quaint old castle hall, oddly constructed, the plan of which came to Miss Dyke like a "flash of intuition," as she explains.

"Later, after I made the sketch, I went to Ireland and met the Countess Clonmore, who was writing a book. I told her of the drawing of a room I'd made. She looked at it. It was just like the one in her home. So she put my drawing in the book."

Miss Dyke is a tall, striking-looking one. Few of us there are who have not seen something in a dream and later, seen the concrete in real life, and then become bewildered as to which we really saw first.

But this artist has visioned scenes in Egypt, where she never traveled; in Ireland in a castle where she has never visited. And starting with only an ancient head, of which she made a sketch in the British Museum, Miss Dyke fashioned a painting which would make the most skeptical listen to tales of transmigration.

"Mental Pictures of Places"

"I don't try to see these things visually. I get mental pictures of places in which I feel I have lived, in previous days."

"Sometimes we met people that apparently are strangers, men and women we are not conscious of ever having met before. Yet we feel and they feel, that a previous acquaintance in another age, in a previous life, has existed."

"Meeting a person is like striking a chord. Marconi, for instance, gets messages off the wireless. He doesn't know what force this is; he knows that he has learned how to put it to work. And a current is of no use without a connection."

"In painting a portrait I determine what planets govern my subject's life, Jupiter, Saturn, Venus, or whatever they may be. All have their own colors. Therefore, I take the hues which shine over the person's existence and put them into appropriate form."

"Putting Mind in Passive State"

"Placing myself in a negative, or passive, state of mind when I come in contact with a person, my subconscious mind seems to be free to receive impressions. These gleanings of character, I use to make the portraits."

Wishart & Son, who not long ago acquired the lot at 233 South Brand boulevard, opposite their place of business, have announced that, instead of improving it for their own use, they are having plans made for a brick building 50 feet in depth, which they have agreed to lease to the Westinghouse Battery Company for a Glendale branch station. It will be under the management of Harry Gill of this city, an expert battery man who had 13 years' experience in Detroit. The building will have an entrance sufficiently wide for cars to drive in, and it will be started about June 1.

Erich von Stroheim's "Foolish Wives" is expected to be ready for the screen within thirty days.

WISHART BUILDING ON SOUTH BRAND

Wishart & Son, who not long ago acquired the lot at 233 South Brand boulevard, opposite their place of business, have announced that, instead of improving it for their own use, they are having plans made for a brick building 50 feet in depth, which they have agreed to lease to the Westinghouse Battery Company for a Glendale branch station. It will be under the management of Harry Gill of this city, an expert battery man who had 13 years' experience in Detroit. The building will have an entrance sufficiently wide for cars to drive in, and it will be started about June 1.

Erich von Stroheim's "Foolish Wives" is expected to be ready for the screen within thirty days.

VICTORY MEDALS
AWAIT VICTORSMajor Cotton Will Aid Men in Obtaining Them Without Red Tape

In his talk before the Glendale Post of the American Legion last night Commander Brinkerhoff of Post No. 8 called attention to the apathy displayed by ex-service men in regard to the Victory medals which the government is anxious to bestow upon them. He declared that over a million of these medals have never been called for and are awaiting application for them on the part of the men to whom they should be given and he urged local post members to get busy and show that they are not indifferent and not out of sympathy with the war and the action taken by our government when it entered the war. In other words, to show that they are still loyal, appreciative soldiers, even if they have doffed the uniform.

Major Robert C. Cotton has announced that he will be in Glendale at the High school gymnasium next Thursday evening prepared to aid all ex-service men in obtaining their Victory medals without any red tape. All that it will be necessary for such men to do will be to present for his inspection their discharge and the major will see to it that the medal reaches them.

COST OF LIVING IN INDIA IS VERY LOW

(By International News Service)
WASHINGTON, May 14.—The cost of living is almost nothing in far away India.

A family of five live on 225 rupees a year, about $50 in United States coin.

Field laboring classes live at even lower cost, American Commissioner Batchelder, at Baroda, advised the Commerce Department.

Low purchasing power of the average British Indian farmer is indicated by the fact that in some provinces only 35 per cent of the population are self-supporting, and are made the prey of money lenders.

PREDICTING WAR

There is much forecasting of a "new war" which is to exceed in destructiveness anything yet experienced. The note of alarm sounded from time to time since the armistice as various military and naval programs were announced, has just reached its loudest note with the enterprise of a New York paper which undertook to show "how the inventive genius of the world is discovering methods of offense and defense hitherto almost unheard of." One prediction is that great guns, with an effective range of 150 miles, will soon be a practical possibility; another dwells on the likelihood of an unlimited development of the powers of aircraft and submarines; a third stresses the ever-widening field which chemistry is opening up for the production of deadly gases and explosives. The most startling news sent out—on the authority of the chemical warfare department of the United States army—is that an especially formidable poison has been discovered. Three drops of the substance on the skin of a human being are sufficient to cause death. A single airplane carrying two tons of the liquid could demolish a division of troops, and a few more tons could wipe out an entire army. Such a poison, producible at the rate of several thousand tons a day, would have whole cities at its mercy.

In view of these disclosures it has seemed to some of our representatives at Washington that "civilization is in danger," that the race is "drifting towards the abyss," that "the world is going stark mad." A less pessimistic view also makes itself heard to the effect that the things reported are no more than a natural continuation of the inventions and advances forced on the Allies after 1914, and that they are not to be taken as showing that the nations hate each other, or that they are preparing for another war. Distrust there is, such as goes with all defensive precautions, but is there not also, as the optimists contend, a powerful counter-movement towards those mutual understandings which are, after all, the best safeguards of peace? The war itself aroused a widespread interest of the nations and races in each other; it taught more forcibly than ever that it cannot be well with any of them until it is well with all.

RAGS AND OLD HUSBANDS

It isn't so much the original cost of a husband that counts as it is the upkeep. On account of the present cost of keeping one of these luxuries around the house some women are offering them for sale and, according to announced specifications, there are some real bargains.

One in New England is being offered at auction, and those who are interested in a used husband, just as good as new, are invited to call and look him over.

Out in Missouri a few weeks ago a woman of energetic habits, who had one of these luxuries hanging around her parlor in an ornamental capacity, didn't wait to sell him at auction or to raffle him off at a dollar a ticket, but traded him for a mule. She got more work out of the mule in one week than she had been able to get out of her husband in 15 years.

It doesn't look as though any lady who wants to buy a second-hand husband will have to go without one. The styles change so, for one thing.

It is possible to grow very weary of a husband—the same old face across the breakfast table and all that, don't you know. Few husbands improve with age, and many of them develop tire trouble, becoming tired very easily early in life. The new plan comes as a great relief, and we need not be surprised to see the following want ad in the newspapers of the future:

FOR SALE—On your own terms, cash or installments, one-family husband. Kind and gentle and fond of children, and any lady can drive him. Has no vicious habits, such as biting or kicking, and never runs away. Has considerable speed in single harness, but can be driven double if rightly handled. Reason for selling—high price of oats. Can't afford to keep him any longer. Will sell outright or will trade for phonograph or parrot.

BOYS AT PLAY

Parents who try to make "sissies" of their boys by not letting them play the games of boys are condemned by an educationalist, who says, "A boy who spends his leisure time in athletics doesn't go to the reform school." There is much truth in the statement. Parents who keep their boys from engaging in clean, aggressive sports are actually destroying a spirit born in him, the excitement of contest. All boys crave competitive exercise of prowess. The energy of youth is absolutely necessary to the making of real live-wire men.

Few people admire the boy who does not take part in typical boy sports, and a lad whose parents refuse to let him play is being taught to shirk the necessary battles of life. The blame for failure in business of a man kept out of sports during his boyhood should not be placed on him so much as on the parents who, by keeping him from those sports, failed to teach him the fundamentals of life.

Parents should urge their boys to get into the thick of boy life, which is the best teacher of manhood. If parents would not try to keep their boys inactive and make them "goody-goodies" there would be less need of juvenile courts, less late hours and less cowardice and deceit among them.

Clean sports teach fair play, the basis of the success of all men. That is the reason, during the war, so many army and navy officers urged the participation of all boys in athletics. They, in their boyhood, had learned that a man who does not "play the game" fair does not play it at all and that sports are the best teachers of fair play.

The factory men have changed the good old rule to, "Put down or shut down."

Germany will sooner or later pay the indemnity. But at whose eventual expense?

ASSEMBLE, ENAMEL ALL THE FENDERS

At the local Ford factory branch they assemble and enamel all the fenders used on every car sold in Arizona and Southern California. Besides the front and rear fenders, the hood, dust shields, cushion springs and some small parts are enameled. The fenders are shipped to the local Ford factory branch in carload lots, five separate pieces making each complete assembly. Seven operations are necessary to assemble the fender. Modern invention makes it possible to rivet, fit and bind these five separate parts into the complete fender in less than four minutes. The local Ford plant has a capacity of 500 fenders per day, the services of only four workmen being required in this department.

From the assembly room the fenders are hauled on large racks to the dipping vats, where they are dipped in enamel. After dipping for 45 minutes to allow the surplus enamel to drain off, the racks are loaded with 2½ tons of fenders are rolled into electric ovens. These ovens are the largest of their type in Los Angeles, and have a capacity of 2400 pieces in an 8-hour day. The fenders are baked at a temperature of 350 to 400 degrees for an hour and a quarter. Only the highest grade coal tar enamel will withstand this terrific heat. After cooling, the fenders are dipped and baked a second time. Then they are ready to be installed on the car.

OPPORTUNITY FOR S. S. WORKERS

The official program of the 36th Annual convention of the Los Angeles County Sunday School Association, which has been mailed to the Sunday school constituency of the county, is full of real meat for Sunday school folk.

The convention will be held in the First Presbyterian Church, Pasadena, May 19-20. The convention theme is, "We would see Jesus." The program is so arranged that it is a School-of-Methods, as well as a convention, and everyone interested in becoming a more efficient Sunday school worker should attend.

More than one hundred speaking and teaching periods; International, State, County and city speakers. See that your school is represented! All delegates will be entertained on the Harvard plan.

Roscoe Arbuckle's next Paramount picture will be "Should a Man Marry." The story is an original one by Sarah Y. Mason, and the scenario is the handiwork of Walter Woods.

OWN YOUR HOME

It is the worthy ambition of every man to own a home. Ownership means contentment, security and happiness. It is worth working for.

It is a fact that the City of Glendale is known as "A City of Homes." A large per cent of its population own their own homes.

You can buy a home with a comparatively small payment down and pay the balance like rent. In a few years you will have paid for the property and will have title to it instead of a bundle of rent receipts.

Rehearing Is Asked by Local Railway Lines

H. B. Titcomb, Vice President of Pacific Electric, States That it Will Be Impossible to Proceed With Construction of a Union Terminal in Los Angeles

Asserting that applications to the railroad commission for a rehearing of its order of April 26 against the three steam lines and the Pacific Electric, directing them to proceed with the construction of a union terminal in the vicinity of the Plaza, are based upon the fact that the order, as is now stands, is impossible of consummation, H. B. Titcomb, vice president of the Pacific Electric, has the following to say:

"The principal point urged by the rail lines as a reason for setting aside the order is that, since the proceedings before the commission were instituted, congress has vested jurisdiction over the matters involved in the interstate commerce commission, which action, as held by the United States supreme court, divested the California commission of all power and authority to require the erection of a union passenger station or the consolidation of terminal facilities of the carriers. "As is well known, the Southern Pacific and the Salt Lake company applied to the commission about four years ago for the approval of a contract entered into July 18, 1917, by which all of the grade crossings at issue would be eliminated, viaducts constructed across the Los Angeles river, through passenger, freight and light engine movements of the Southern Pacific taken from Alameda street and also, by the continuance of the Pacific Electric's present elevated station from the rear of the Los Angeles river and to Fourteenth street on the south, interurban traffic of the from Main, Aliso, Los Angeles, San Pedro, First, Seventh and Ninth streets.

"The total cost of this work would be $17,000,000. About $9,250,000 would be immediately spent by the railroads for their facilities and $7,750,000 would be for viaducts at Main, Macv, Aliso, Seventh and Ninth streets and the reconstruction of existing viaducts at First and Fourth streets under such apportionment of this $7,750,000 cost as the railroad commission would make as between the city and the railroads. The financial situation is such that I do not believe the railroads should be required to join in a union station at the Plaza at an expense of $47,674,152, particularly when another plan, which would provide a more economical and equally safe and convenient method of handling passenger traffic, including future improvements such as new passenger and freight yards for the Santa Fe, additional Salt Lake freight yards and expansion of other facilities, giving 30 per cent greater combined advantage than ever contemplated under the railroad commission engineers' plan, can be consummated at a cost of $22,047,207. This includes all the viaducts mentioned before together with viaducts at Santa Fe avenue and Butte street and separation of grades at Fourth and Alameda streets.

"The commission has evidently given little weight to the unanimous endorsement of the carriers' proposals by all of the chambers of commerce and bona fide civic organizations of Southern California when it disposes of this competent public opinion in the following language. There have been filed with the commission numerous resolutions by chambers of commerce, improvement associations, civic and commercial organizations, and by local authorities of communities adjacent to Los Angeles, endorsing or condemning the so-called Southern Pacific-Salt Lake-Pacific Electric plan."

"It is further stated by the commission that 'It is a fact that the Pacific Electric's most urgent service and traffic problems dealing with the Hill street and the Hollywood situations are not affected by the present proceeding.' The Pacific Electric's most urgent service and traffic problem is not the Hollywood situation, as that is a very small proportion of the 100,000,000 people carried annually by the Pacific Electric. The delays on Main street, San Pedro and Ninth streets are far more serious to the economic operation of the Pacific Electric and the giving of service to a greater number of patrons than any other feature of the grade crossing elimination and depot situation that has been presented and this decision affords absolutely no relief. When you consider that the travel on the Pacific Electric is 36 times as great as the combined travel of all the steam lines entering Los Angeles, the relief of the Pacific Electric's interurban passengers is the most important question for solution."

"If the rail lines' plan had been approved promptly, financial arrangements were such that the work would have been completed by this time and the interurban passengers to such points as San Pedro, Long Beach, Newport beach, Santa Ana, Whittier, La Habra, Riverside, Sierra Madre, Monrovia, Pomona, San Bernardino, Pasadena and Redlands, would now be coming into and leaving the Pacific Electric station at Sixth and Main streets by elevated at an on-time, schedule from three to ten minutes less than at present, without hazard to life, limb or property due to grade crossings in Los Angeles."

"The Salt Lake route would have had the use of the Southern Pacific's present modern and commodious passenger station at Fifth and Central avenue, and the only traffic on Alameda street would have been the switching movements to the industries along that thoroughfare, which, in this order of the commission, are conceded to be necessary, and which are essential to the upbuilding of this community."

"The Santa Fe, Salt Lake, Southern Pacific and Pacific Electric are resisting this order because the railroad situation generally will not warrant or permit the expenditure of over $47,000,000 when for $22,000,000 more adequate facilities could be provided. The result of the enforcement of such an unpopular and impractical layout would be a delay of several years before final decision could be had, which would in turn retard the progress of any development or improvement that might be contemplated by any of the roads entering Los Angeles and, of course, delay to much needed relief in grade crossing elimination."

COULD NOT BE SPARED FOR CHIEF JUSTICESHIP

Because of his value to the British Government in the House of Commons Sir Gordon Hewart, reputed the most able Attorney-General who ever held that post in England, was not able to take the post of Lord Chief Justice of England, vacated recently by the Earl of Reading on his nomination to the Viceroyalty of India. To Sir Gordon, as a matter of unwritten law and tradition, belonged the succession to the Lord Chief Justiceship. The fact that his value to the government prevented his accepting the post constitutes a remarkable tribute to his ability alike as a statesman and a parliamentarian. Sir Alfred Tristram Lawrence, the oldest member of the bench, was nominated to the position of Lord Chief Justice by Premier Lloyd George.

STUDY OF GREEK LANGUAGE URGED

CHICAGO, May 14.—Homer again will become the world's best seller and Euripides will back George M. Cohan off the boards if the world lends an attentive ear to an editorial appearing in a recent issue of the Classical Journal, a publication issued by the University of Chicago Press.

Editors of the Classical Journal urge that Greek be made the universal language of modern times. "No modern living language can compare with the Greek," the editorial says. "It is the perfection of speech. It is the ideal. It is gradually becoming a living tongue."

Prize Hen Is Claimed

LITTLETON, Col., May 14.—Mrs. Mary M. Kinell, who supervises a chicken farm near here, protests the claim of Portland, Ore., and Salt Lake, Utah, that they each have a hen that has laid the largest egg in captivity. The two Western cities boast of eggs measuring seven inches and seven and one-half inches in circumference, respectively. Mrs. Kinell produces an egg laid by a white leghorn hen weighing four ounces and measuring eight and one-eighth inches around.

Scandinavian Tariff

(By International News Service) WASHINGTON, May 14.—The Scandinavian countries are moving to protect their shipping interests against undue tax levies by foreign countries. Sweden, Norway and Denmark, through their accredited delegates, have decided to draft new laws that will tax foreign shipping and export enterprises in Scandinavia approximately to the same extent that Scandinavian shipping is taxed in foreign countries.

MEMORIAL SERVICE BY GLEN EYRIE

Altar Decked With Flowers in Memory of Those Who Have Passed Away

About 100 interested and loyal members of Glen Eyrie Chapter, P. E. O., were in attendance Friday night for the annual memorial service when the altar is draped in white and decked with flowers for those who have died during the year. White rosebuds were the tribute of remembrance and the service as conducted by Mrs. Naudain, worthy matron, and her corps of officers, was most impressive.

Three new members were initiated, Mrs. Inez Paune Moore, Mrs. Grace Jean Lamb and Mrs. Jennie D. Woodbury.

After the chapter was closed refreshments were served in the hall below. A large number of visitors were present from chapters of Southern California and the east.

W. R. C. INITIATES FOUR NEW MEMBERS

At the business session of the Women's Relief Corps, N. P. Banks Post, held Friday afternoon at G. A. R. hall, four new members were initiated, bringing the roster of the organization to 235. It has been growing rapidly the past two years and has been doing much philanthropic work. At the meeting of its affiliated organization, the Kensington Club, which will be entertained next Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Milligan on East Park avenue, the ladies will finish work begun for the Monte Vista Home and also for the Evergreen Home near San Francisco, for war widows. Members will participate in the program arranged by the Post for Memorial Day, as usual.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—A bill for $2,500,000,000 for 26 months of government control is what the railroads are seeking to collect from the federal treasury, Senator Cummins, Republican of Iowa, disclosed today when the senate interstate commerce committee resumed its probe of railroad conditions. The government's contention is that it does not owe the railroads so much money, Senator Cummins explained, but "when we come out of it all," he added, "we may have to pay the railroads as much as $1,800,000,000."

SUNDAY AFTERNOON AT CHAUTAUQUA

There will be no Sunday morning or evening program given at the Chautauqua tent tomorrow.

The entire program will be given in the afternoon. At 2 o'clock sharp there will be a lecture by Father D. J. Cronin, "Weeds and Flowers of Literature." This will be followed by a community sing directed by Walter Jenkins.

"The Servant in the House," that great dramatized sermon, will be given by the Keighley Broadway players. The management announces that they have succeeded in renting 300 chairs, so that henceforth there will be chairs enough to accommodate everyone.

The Jugo-Slav orchestra is on the program this afternoon, and this evening's feature is Tom Skeyhill's wonderful lecture portraying Soviet Russia as it is today.

TELEGRAPH BRIEFS

BERLIN, May 14.—Germany may confiscate the gold, diamonds and pearls of her citizens for the purpose of paying the indemnity to the allies.

DUBLIN, May 14.—Serious rioting took place in Belfast, stronghold of Ulster, this morning. Sinn Feiners there made three separate attacks on the docks, using revolvers and stones as their main weapons. The police had difficulty in suppressing the riots. Several persons were injured in the riots.

LONDON, May 14.—Added significance, today was given to Premier Lloyd George's "revolution warning" by a riot of 200 reservists at the great Woolwich arsenal. Soldiers in trench helmets and equipped with rifles as well as extra squads of police, had to be rushed to the scene before the rioters were quieted.

NEW YORK, May 14.—Cablegrams urging marine workers in all European, Central and South American ports to refuse to handle "unfair" American ships that have sailed in spite of efforts here of marine strikers to halt them, were dispatched today, it was announced by Gus Brown, local business manager of the International Seaman's Association. The announcement was made after Brown had been in telephonic communication with higher officials of the association at Washington.

HERMAN
THE CUT UP -
FILM OF DEVOTION.

LET'S TAKE A WALK,
ANNABELL.

NOT FOR AN HOUR OR SO,
HERMAN.

WHY

CANT YOU SEE I'M CROCHETIN' - I'VE GOT TO PUT AN EDGE ON THIS TOWEL.

I'VE GOT TO DO
A LIL' FANCYWORK
MYSELF 'FORE
I CAN GO.

FANCY-
WORK?

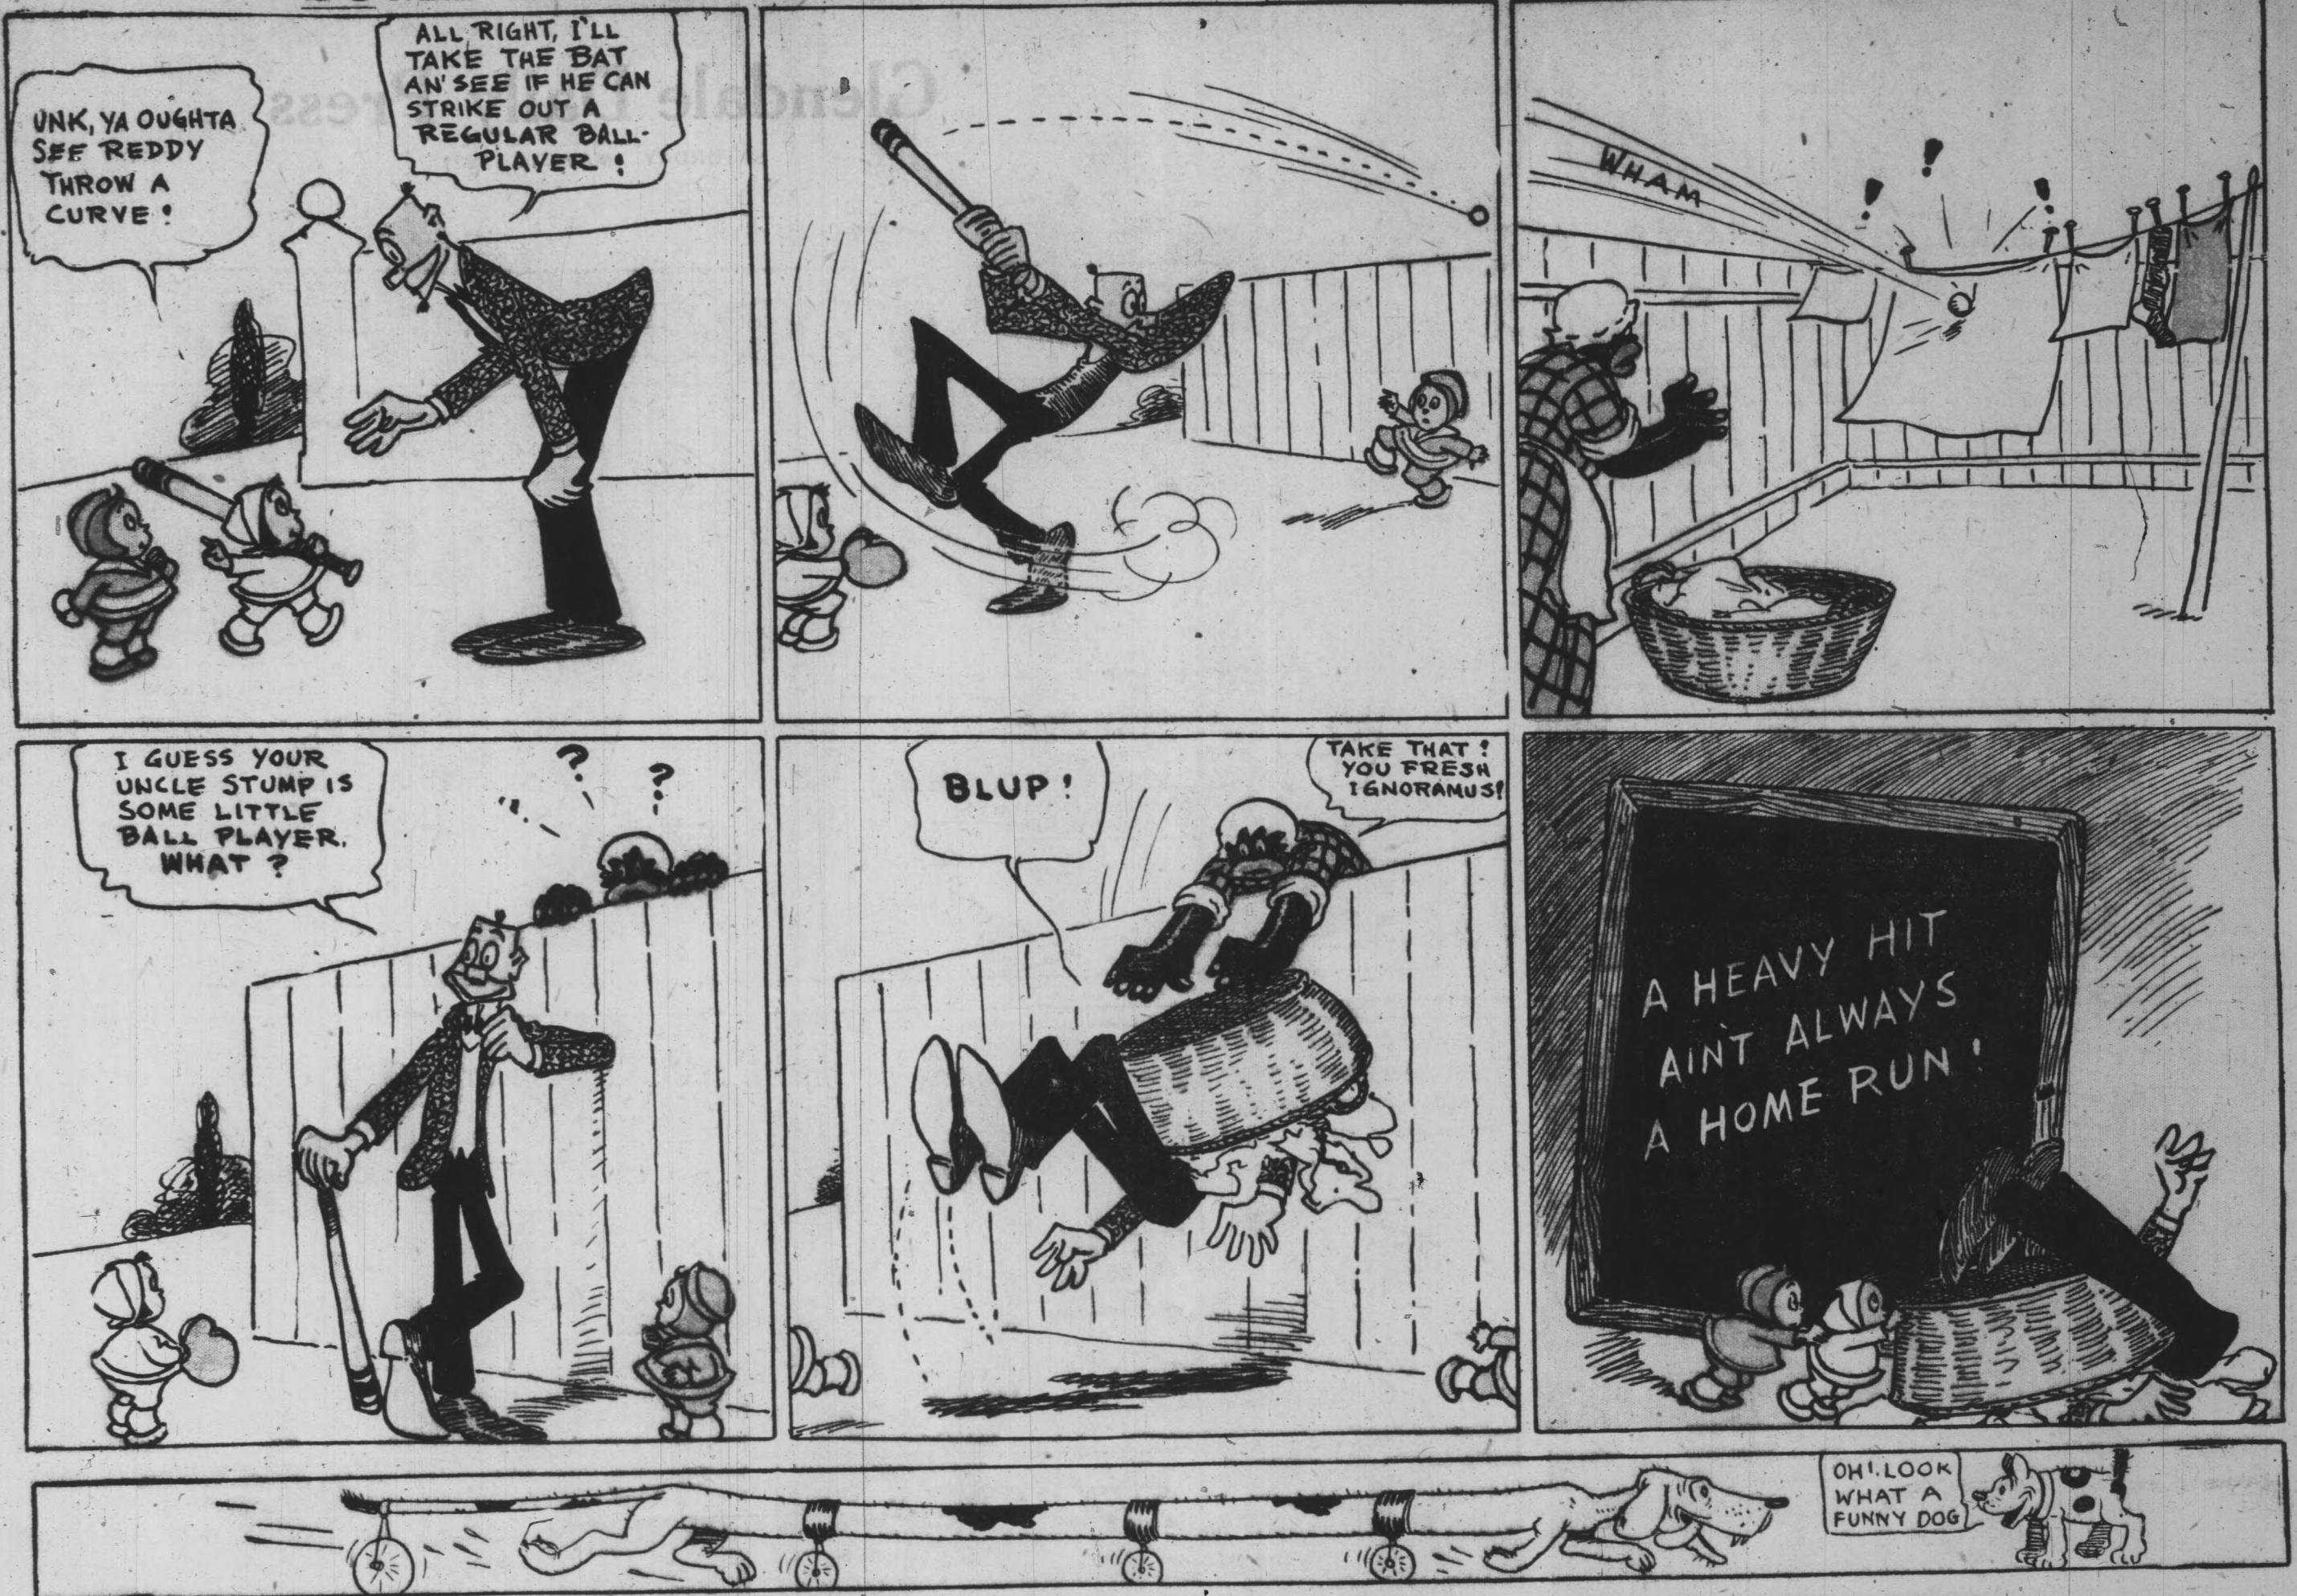

YEP!
I HAVE TO PUT AN EDGE ON A RAZOR!

HELLO MRS. JONES — IS YOUR SON HARRY
THERE?
YOU SAY HE IS.
IS HE DEAD?

THAT'S WHAT I SAID —
"IS HE DEAD?"
YOU SAY HE'S READING?
THEN HE'S ALIVE!
OH, HOW DISCOURAGING.

THAT'S WHAT I SAID —
"DISCOURAGING TO HEAR,
HE'S ALIVE." YES.
WELL, YOU SEE, HE PROPOSED TO ME
THIS EVENING —

AND HE SAID IF I DIDNT ACCEPT HIM HE'D KILL HIMSELF — THE PROPOSITION APPEALED TO ME SO MUCH THAT I REFUSED TO MARRY HIM —
